Contacting staff with a concern about your child

We just want to clarify who you should contact if you have a concern about your child in school. If you are worried about something that has happened in school - e.g. behaviour, learning or bullying - your first point of call should always be your child's class teacher.

Please come into school and make an appointment to speak to them or catch them at the end of the school day. If you are worried that your child may have additional needs, or you're worried about the progress they are making, then you'll need to make an appointment to see the class teacher first. If they are unable to resolve the situation, then they will make an appointment for you to meet Miss Scarsbrook and the class teacher. If you have any worries about behaviour at home or attendance, then our support worker, Amanda, is best placed to help you. She won't be able to support with specific behaviour incidents in school as this is the class teachers' responsibility. If you have a safeguarding concern, then you should make an appointment to see Miss Wells, Mr Davies or Miss Wiles. If you have made contact with school and are not happy with the response or wish to make a complaint about a member of school staff, you should in the first instance make an appointment to see Miss Wells or Mr Davies. In the unlikely event that we haven't been able to deal with your concern, then you should make an appointment to see Miss Wiles. We really do want to work in partnership with parents and hope this clarifies who can best support you to resolve any issues as quickly as possible.
